On 1 March 2017, Marc Biermann joined the Process Research group at Givaudan in Dübendorf as a postdoctoral researcher. He will also work closely with Process Development teams at our production site in Geneva. Marc (born 1988) studied Biochemistry at Bielefeld University and obtained his Master's degree in 2012. He then joined the group of Prof. Harald Gröger studying for his Ph.D. on the chemoenzymatic synthesis of Guerbet alcohols. He successfully defended his thesis in December 2016. Marc's research interests include chiral synthesis using biocatalysts and the implementation of biotransformations into industrial processes.
